Propark America Becomes Corporate Sponsor of Women In Parking

Hartford, Connecticut – Propark America announced today that it has become a Titanium Partner of Women In Parking.

“Women In Parking is a transformative association for the parking industry,” stated John Schmid, Propark’s chief executive officer. “We are extremely proud to contribute to the ongoing endeavor of empowering women in the workforce and within our industry through this partnership.”

Established in 2011, Women In Parking seeks to enhance the professional careers of women in the parking industry through extensive leadership opportunities, the exchange of expert knowledge and ideas, and collaboration between its members.

“Women leaders comprise a major portion of our corporate team and management level professionals,” Schmid continued. “For instance, when we acquired Winpark in 2014 from Hines Real Estate, the vast majority of the management team was comprised of smart, energetic women. We brought in Liliana Rambo as president of Winpark, and are proud of the leadership that she, and our other women executives, brings to our company.”

Built on a foundation of mentorship, networking, and education, Women In Parking encourages teamwork and effective communication between its members. Through member benefit services, women of Propark and Winpark will be able to discuss trends and gain more insight into the industry by being able to connect with their WIP peers.
